Re Item V

~~Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or~~ industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Document US-A-4431390 (D1), which discloses an oil-injected screw compressor with all the features of the preamble of independent claim 6 and a control method thereof as described in the preamble of independent claim 1, is to be considered as the closest prior art with regard to claims 1-17.

The problem to be solved is to avoid the occurrence of an insufficient injection pressure of lubricant to the compressor chamber, regardless of the state of the oil-cooler bypass, when the compressor switches from an unloaded to a loaded condition.

The solution to this problem is to control and to construct the oil-cooler bypass in such a way that the temperature-sensitive element of the bypass is, regardless of the temperature of the oil, temporarily switched off during the transition from the unloaded to the loaded condition of the compressor. Such features aren't disclosed in D1 nor in any other prior art document. Therefore the subject-matter of independent claims 1 and 6 and also of dependent claims 2-5 and 7-17 is new (Article 33(2) PCT).

D1 further discloses a bypass which can be switched off by a saturation parameters controlled valve. However as no hint about the particular use of the instantaneous conditions resulting from the switch from an unloaded to a loaded condition of the compressor instead of the saturation parameters is given in D1 nor in any prior art document and as it wouldn't be obvious to the skilled person to replace the one by the other, the subject-matter of independent claims 1 and 6 and also of dependent claims 2-5 and 7-17 involves an inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT).

The subject-matter of claims 1-17 is industrially applicable (Article 33(4) PCT).
